Dear Mr. President,

In the last few weeks, we have witnessed dramatic and historic events in Libya. There can no longer be any doubt regarding the yearning of so many Libyans for fundamental change, human dignity, and freedom. The new Libyan authorities are taking several steps to stabilize the security situation in the country and to begin providing basic services to the Libyan people. They have clearly requested the assistance of the United Nations and the international community in this process. The time has come for Libyans to begin walking the path of reconciliation and recovery. It is important that the international community be ready to support the Libyan people.

On 26 April 2011, I appointed Mr. Ian Martin as my Special Adviser to coordinate post-conflict planning of the United Nations system for Libya. Since then, Mr. Martin has led an integrated pre-assessment process for Libya post-conflict planning, which involved Secretariat departments and offices, United Nations agencies, funds and programmes, together with the World Bank and the International Organization for Migration. Mr. Martin and I have consulted with the Libyan transitional authorities on areas in which they would like to receive United Nations support to the transition, beyond the ongoing coordination and delivery of humanitarian assistance.

I wish to propose the establishment of an integrated United Nations Support Mission in Libya (UNSMIL) for an initial period of three months. The mission will be headed by a Special Representative and will have a Deputy Special Representative who will also be the Resident Coordinator and may be subsequently designated as a Humanitarian Coordinator following standard procedures. It will consist of substantive and mission support personnel with a broad range of political, electoral, constitutional, human rights, transitional justice, public security, rule of law, coordination, gender, and other technical skills in the priority areas requested by the Libyan transitional authorities.

His Excellency
Mr. Nawaf Salam
President of the Security Council
New York

In my briefing to the Security Council on 30 August 2011, I outlined my intention for such a mission to be guided by the following principles: national ownership, speed of response and rapid delivery, and effective coordination of international assistance.

The full scope and nature of the assistance requested from the United Nations will be the subject of further consultation by my Special Adviser with the Libyan transitional authorities and civil society. The three-month initial deployment is intended to allow for in-country engagement in further defining the needs and wishes of Libya for United Nations support, while delivering urgent advice and assistance. The mandate of the mission would include assistance and support to national efforts to, inter alia:

- (a) Restore public security and order and promote the rule of law;
- (b) Undertake inclusive political dialogue, promote national reconciliation, and embark upon the constitution-making and electoral processes;
- (c) Extend state authority, including through the strengthening of emerging accountable institutions and the restoration of public services;
- (d) Protect human rights, particularly for vulnerable groups, and support transitional justice;
- (e) Take the immediate steps required to initiate economic recovery; and
- (f) Coordinate the support that may be requested from other multilateral and bilateral actors.

I intend to revert to the Security Council within three months with proposals for any adjustments that may be required, taking account of the wishes of the transitional authorities for the scope and nature of United Nations support beyond this initial three months mandate.

I hope that I can count on the support of the Security Council in expeditiously approving the mandate of this mission to enable us to move quickly in supporting the Libyan people at this critical moment.
